Solar Garden Lighting & Fountains Popular for Spring 2004

Farmington Hills, Michigan, May 24, 2004 – As the cost of energy continues to rise, and the cost of solar panels are falling, the sales of solar garden lighting, solar fountains and solar birdbaths have taken a large increase this spring.

Have you been wanting to enhance your yard with landscape lighting, but haven't because you hate the thought of running power cables? Adding lights is now easier than ever with the large selection of solar garden lights on the market this spring. Just place these in any location that allows for direct sunlight through the day, and they will automatically illuminate at night. You won't have to remember to turn it on or off!

How Does it Work?

During the day, the solar panel on the top of the light will convert the sunlight into electricity and recharge the included rechargeable battery. In the evening the light will turn on automatically. The hours of light generated with each charge depends on the geographical location, weather conditions and seasonal lighting availability. Visit:
